The Council for Diversity and Inclusion (CDI) was formed to bring together faculty, staff, and students to recommend action to improve the teaching, learning, and working environment of the school from a diversity and inclusion perspective.

The council membership will be comprised of interested Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine faculty, staff, and students. The Dean and the Associate Dean for Community and Culture will periodically review CDI member composition and select Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine faculty, staff, and students for appointment. It is expected that members would serve a minimum of a one year term with no maximum limit. Council members are appointed by the Dean and the Associate Dean for Community and culture. Current members may also nominate other Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine faculty, staff, and students for membership.
